FORT SILL, OK - A Department of the Army Civilian from Fort Sill has tested positive for COVID-19.

A DA civilian received notification of a positive COVID-19 test result and is taking appropriate actions. The DA civilian is a resident of Comanche County and is currently in isolation at their residence. This individual is experiencing mild symptoms.

Reynolds Army Health Clinic in collaboration and in support of the county is tracing where this individual had contact with others on Fort Sill and will advise those individuals. The Comanche County Health Department is taking the lead in tracing the contact of COVID-19 exposure outside Fort Sill.

"Fort Sill's priority is the protection of service members, their families and the department's civilian work force. Safeguarding our ability to train Soldiers to support and defend our nation is our mission and we will take the necessary precautions to maintain readiness while protecting our community to the best of our ability," said Maj. Gen. Kenneth Kamper, Commander of the Fires Center of Excellence and Fort Sill. "Fort Sill will continue to make decisions that will help stop the spread of COVID-19 to the best of our ability. As conditions continue to change, we will work diligently with our local health partners to ensure we do everything we can to mitigate the effects of COVID-19 on the entire Lawton Fort Sill community."

For public health tracking purposes, the DA civilian is being counted as a positive case for Comanche County. This is the only confirmed case of COVID-19 from Fort Sill. Further updates on the status of Fort Sill can be found on the official Fort Sill Facebook page as well as the Fort Sill website. Be sure to tune into our Facebook Live town hall happening on Mar. 31 at 6 p.m., for more information.
